An ontology is a living artifact that is born inside an organizational context, has a life-cycle and is interacted with by various agents. In the beginning, an organizational champion makes a strong argument to invest funds and human resources in building a Prototype that is robust enough to confince a majority of interested parties (In theory). This continues the Saga...